

Welcome to Sonderborg

In Sonderborg, all of Europe is within your reach. This is where Scandinavia meets and merges with continental Europe. Major urban areas such as Flensburg, Hamburg and Kiel are our close neighbours, while the well-developed infrastructure of motorways and airports provides short distances to other metropolitan areas such as Berlin and Copenhagen.

Our unique location as a natural hub in the borderlands has given us a unique ability to cooperate across borders, cultures and dividing lines, so that today people of 120 different nationalities reside in Sonderborg.

On the one hand, Sonderborg has all the characteristics of a big city: Some of Denmark's biggest multinational corporations are headquartered here and the area has an international lead within cleantech and energy efficiency. The university campus is the most international in Denmark with students from more than 50 countries, and languages from all over the world are spoken in the town's many restaurants and cafés. Sonderborg also features as many cultural experiences and events as there are days of the year.

At the same time, however, Sonderborg is also something entirely different, because we are a big city in natural surroundings. We are close to forests, beaches, hills, woods and lakes. We are surrounded by more than 250 kilometres of winding coastline. We have room for reflection, tranquillity and depth.